"We stopped taking deposits four months ago", Leeber said. You don't pay Cornerstone a dime until its workers show up at your house and start working."

"I think we have to stop paying contractors up front and putting down deposits for future work.

I know it might lead to some contactors being ripped off or jerked around by homeowners. But, I don't think the numbers will compare to the homeowners who get taken by contractors who are paid up front.

This idea isn't original. Tony Leeber, the owner of Cornerstone, called me last week to say that he has stopped requiring deposits."
